WordPress is a Content Management System (CMS). That just means it is a piece of software that can help you manage and organize your content into an impressive and coherent website. Initially WordPress was created as a blogging tool, but over the years it has become so much more than that. Today, many WordPress driven sites look nothing like blogs (unless that's what the user

WordPress posts are date-dependent and chronological and this separates them from pages which are date-independent and not really related to any other piece of content on the site. Posts were originally designed to be ordered by date, with a post you created yesterday logically appearing lower down the page than a post you make today. Newer posts are inserted at the top of the page, and older posts are pushed off the bottom.
